Dear Dr. Macdonald:

I am sending you a first draft of the report of our committee. As far as I remember it embodies the conclusions we reached on Thursday night. Will you kindly look through it, make any suggestions, and return it to me so that I may have it for next Thursday?

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.

University of Toronto.

Dear Dr. Macdonald:

I saw Professor Chant on Saturday with regard to the letter he wrote to the Superintendent, a copy of which you gave me on Thursday. Dr. Chant says that he wrote the letter in order to avoid the possibility of a recurrence of a difficulty which he had heard about in connection with the use of a room for a lecture by Professor McLennan a few nights previously. He put the last clause in with the very purpose of meeting that difficulty, and thought that it would be understood in that way.

I told him that after this the proper procedure would be to telephone to my office when he desires to use the building after hours, and that I would then inform the Superintendent that permission had been granted for its use. Dr. Chant is I am sure very reasonable, and falls in with this procedure.

Yours sincerely,

President.

Dear Dr. Macdonald:

Mr. Bruce Clark, now teaching French in the University at Brunswick, Maine, has to spend next winter in Toronto on account of family reasons. He is an excellent linguist, and intends in the future to continue his work in the University, but he would like to get a chance of teaching in the neighborhood of Toronto for the one winter, whether it be in a private school, public school, or tutorial work. I am writing to you in the mere chance that you might need a man just for the winter. If you do not I will try Upper Canada and some of the other schools.

With kind regards, I am,

Yours sincerely,

President.
